Hello, Angelo.

Thank you for all your helpful replies to our questions during our telephone conversation today.

One other thing that occurred to me is that we could use screenshots of the web interface(s) used for your invention. If you could send those images to us as soon as possible, we should have the first draft of the patent sent out to you in about 1-2 weeks.

Again, thanks for your help with this patent application.

Your Reference: P6420

Dear Messrs. Rajadurai, Yacoub, Atwood, Ghazizadeh, Reid and Srinivasan:

Enclosed for your review is a first draft of a patent application entitled “Market Development Engineering – Bug Council Process.” Please review this application carefully and send us your comments at your earliest convenience. Described below are certain requirements of the United States patent laws of which you should be aware during your review of the draft application and the subsequent prosecution of the application after it is filed.

ROSENTHAL & OSHA L.L.P.

August 24, 2001

Review of the Specification

Please review the entire application for completeness and accuracy. Under the patent laws of the United States, the patent specification must teach a person of ordinary skill in the art how to practice the claimed invention without undue experimentation; it is critical that the patent application meet this requirement. Additionally, do not hesitate to point out any technical errors, details, or advantages that I have not adequately described.

"Best-Mode" Requirement

Under the patent laws of the United States, a patent application must describe the "best mode" contemplated by the inventor of practicing the claimed invention at the time of filing the application. Failure to comply with the best-mode requirement may result in the patent later being held to be invalid.

As a general proposition, any time an inventor has a preference regarding any aspect of the invention, including specifically the way the invention is implemented from a commercial or other point of view, that aspect should at least be considered as a possible best mode point. Depending on the circumstances, the best mode might include preferred manufacturing techniques, preferred operating conditions, preferred materials used in construction or operation, preferred algorithms, subsequent improvements to the initial invention, etc. In addition, the best mode is not limited to information developed by the inventor, but may include items suggested or developed by others but known to the inventor at the time the application is filed. I encourage you to discuss with me any questions you may have regarding compliance with the best-mode requirement in this patent application.

Review of the Claims

Each claim in the application (the numbered paragraphs at the end of the application) represents a separate definition of the invention, and hence each claim may afford a different scope of protection if allowed. As you read the claims, please remember that the "dependent" claims (i.e., those claims that refer to other claims in the application by number) include all of the limitations of the referenced claim(s). You will notice that some claims are more specific than others. It is appropriate to seek to cover the invention in both its broader and more narrow aspects by drafting claims of varying scope. In general, the more detail that is recited in a claim, the more narrow the scope of the protection afforded by that claim.

ROSENTHAL & OSHA L.L.P.

When reviewing the claims, please ensure that there is a claim that covers each of the various ways in which the invention could be practiced; ideally, there should be at least one broad claim in the application that covers all of the various possible embodiments of the invention. Please bear in mind that a claim that includes an element that is not present in a particular embodiment of the invention probably will not cover that embodiment. On the other hand, it is not necessary for a claim to include every element of an embodiment of an invention to cover the invention. If none of the claims covers a particular variation or embodiment of the invention, please let me know, as we should consider adding one or more additional claims.

Disclosure of Material "Prior Art" and Other Information

Please note that each inventor will be required to sign a declaration as a part of the application process. The declaration is a statement by the person signing it, made subject to the penalties of perjury, acknowledging that the person signing the declaration: (1) has reviewed and understands the contents of the application; (2) believes that he/she is an original and first inventor of the claimed invention; and (3) understands that he/she and all other individuals having substantial involvement in the preparation or prosecution of the application have a duty to disclose to the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office all information known to them (or that later becomes known to them prior to the issuance of the patent) that is "material" to the examination of the application. Such "material information" includes prior art that is material to the examination of the application. Even potentially material information should be brought to our attention so that we may consider submitting it to the Patent and Trademark Office.

If you have any questions, please feel free to call or otherwise contact us.

Very truly yours,

Robert P. Lord

Angelo Rajadurai just called me up regarding comments on the draft we sent him. He said he does not have the draft with him, and is working from home. The only comment he has at this time is that we need to change the name of the app to "Rating Apparatus for Evaluating Bugs" from "Method of Evaluating Bugs Using a Bug Council Rating Apparatus." Apparently "Bug Council" is being used for something else, and so therefore we should not use it. He said he had some other minor comment, but he forgot what it was, and that if he remembers it, he will call us today. His cell phone number is 781-354-6798.

I told him we need his final comments by tomorrow.
I will take a look at the draft and see what other changes are required in order to change the title.
